

The Philosophy of OMS

About Pictures

The philosophy of OMS:

Searching for a life partner is not an easy thing to do. Both sides must be truthful about personal situations regarding physical, mental, and social abilities as well as health. It is not possible to share that kind of information easily or deeply with a “stranger”. Such personal life details can be shared once a feeling of trust has been established. Anonymity can serve such trust building.

During a preliminary search, candidates, their parents, and sponsors will have the option to read what OMS calls a candidate’s “Limited Profile.” A Limited Profile does not reveal the identity of the candidate but, if beautifully written, should provide enough information to give the reader a pretty good idea of the person’s character.

The ability to ask questions about a Limited Profile via a private and secure anonymous email system is necessary to keep both sides honest and without the fear of being “discovered”.

About the pictures:

Pictures are a distracter.

Consciously and most often unconsciously one will make assumptions about someone as soon as they see a picture of that individual. To stop this from happening, OMS is not showing the pictures upfront but allowing you, who is search earnestly for a spouse to read what the individual has posted about himself or herself.

Beautifully written, a profile will be able to allow you to discover the soul of this individual and then make an educated decision about seeking this person further or not.

You do have the ability to ask for a full profile. The full profile will give you pictures and all the other information you shall need to communicate with this person in earnest.
